

PACSA proudly presents:

TALK: The Power of Photography for Humanity
Saturday, February 27, 2016 . 2:00pm - 4:00pm
USC . Grace Ford Salvatori Hall (GFS) 106

Description: National Geographic photographer and explorer Reza Deghati known as REZA talks about the power of visual media have to affect social changes and how it can change one's perspective of humanity. He talks about the helplessness and dismay of humankind caught up in torment, but he also shares the cultures of the world to which they belong, the traditions, the history and, above all, the infallible hope of a better world.

Admission: Free and open to public

&

WORKSHOP: Portfolio Review
Sunday, February 28, 2016
USC

Description: In this workshop, participants have the opportunity to review their photographic works with REZA individually or in group. REZA will teach lessons in photography during the workshop.

Admission: Free and open ONLY to students. Space is limited for this workshop and registration is required. Applicants can be any USC or Non-USC students in any major who are interested in photography and have some photographs (amateur or professional) to present for review. To register, please please fill out the Registration Form at the link below. The deadline for registration is Feb. 18, 2016. Requests will be reviewed and 15 students will be selected for this workshop. Selected students will be notified by Feb. 22, 2016.

Workshop Registration Form: www.pacsausc.com/reze-workshop